RECEIVED

Dear Sirs and Madame,

I object strenuously to your recent move to compel VoIP businesses to allow eavesdropping on Internet calls.

AUG 27 2004

There is no logical reason for it.

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

Terrorists cannot use internet phones in Internet cafes; and the technology is not available in Iraq, Iran, or Afghanistan.

This is simply a police-state tactic.

It is repellant and is only designed to spy on US citizens. Anyone with a security officer's badge can pass for a LEA and use the technology to snoop on fellow Americans.

I urge you to take a reasonable stand.
